Foreword

Again we bring you greetings from your Alma Mater.

In many ways this has been a remarkable year for our institution. We have seen the completion of a splendid Cafeteria in which an average of 1700 students were fed daily during the summer session.

The Gymnasium is ready for Basket Ball although some minor contracts remain to be completed.

The contractor is making excellent progress on the Dormitory for women which we hope will be ready for use by next summer's session.

We are in the midst of a Campaign to raise funds with which to erect a magnificent Stadium on our athletic field.

We had a total enrollment from June 1st, 1921 to June 1st, 1922 of 4357 and our enrollment up to Oct. 29 of this fiscal year is 4454.

Over six hundred alumni, students and friends sat at S. M. T. N. Banquet Tables in October and November. They were distributed as follows:

Pittsburg, Friday evening, October 20—310

Hutchinson, Friday evening, October 20—100

Topeka, Thursday evening, October 19—125

Hays, Friday evening, October 20—20

Kansas City, Mo., Friday evening, November 17—50

It is you who have made this wonderful record possible. You can make this institution, your institution, greater still and more far reaching in its influence.

It is up to you to say what the ultimate accomplishments of your Alma Mater shall be.

What is your answer?

S. L. Householder,
Secretary of Service Bureau.

A MAN OF THREE B'S

ARTHUR DEAN

Professor of Vocational Education, Teachers College, New York City

Boston is just naturally superior. It was born with it, takes it for granted, and is proud of it. Any one who doubts it is snubbed, as only Boston can snub. New York does not bother to tell you that it is superior. It is too busy taking your money to prove in words that it is the great and only.

Kansas tells you all about her greatness. She does not assume that you may already know it or have eyes to see it. In her adolescent openness she insists that you know why she is superior.

When I read the state teachers' magazine "write ups" on the several gathering places of the state meeting of teachers, I was glad that I had been assigned to speak at Hutchinson and Pittsburg. And yet what was I not missing in the other places of meeting! For according to the prospectus to attend the meeting at Hays was to have the privilege of temporary residence in an earthly Heaven. To go to Hutchinson was like meeting your professional friends in the Garden of Eden. To convocate at Topeka was to accept a privilege in a national metropolis. To shop in Pittsburg was a veritable gift of the gods. Such is the power of the school press, the ability of Secreary Pinet, and of the Kansas spirit. Luckily for me, I did not have to offend by choosing. The cards were stacked. I was assigned.

Hutchinson evaporates salt, local pride, and hospitality. She exports all three abundantly. It is the gateway for the great southwestern wheat belt. I saw only its Sinclair Lewis Street, two meeting places, and a hotel. It was the hotel which kept me inside. Any one who knows the Fred Harvey system of eating and sleeping will understand why I did not leave "The Bisonte." A town is known by the hotel it keeps. Any man who can organize a hotel and restaurant system which is clean, reasonable in price and efficient in these days of decadent service should have his name carved in the list of Great Americans. When I write an inspiring reader for vocational guidance purposes, I shall include Harveyizing along with rail-splitting, wizarding, Burbanking and cherry tree cutting. How the average American plan hotel can take perfectly good eggs, milk, flour, butter, and wholesome raw material and make so scientifically their miserable concoctions has always been beyond my comprehension. More then once I have been tempted to ask for the ingenious formula by which they translated good materials into a hodgepodge of dirtiness, tastelessness and deadweightness.

The less said about Kansas trains the better. I suggest that their cow catchers be attached on the rear because wandering animals might step on the last car. The trains have fancy and grandsounding names. A slight change of letters will more accurately describe them then their time-table titles. I suggest "Moonshine Special." "Frisky Unlimited," "Rocky Service," and "Hot Box Special." The railroad strike may be over but the shop men are evidently not giving that extra twist to the nuts or rebabbiting the boxes.

Kansas has a great governor and a great editor—Allen and White. The former, as those who read the papers know, believes in the sovereignty of the state. In his advocacy of the industrial court he takes away the freedom to wage industrial warfare, and substitutes industrial peace. He has answered those industrial workers who are like the child who, having heard so much about what God forbids and what the policeman forbids, exclaimed, "What a good time we could have if it were not for God and the policeman." Governor Allen reminds the Kansas people of God and the policeman.

Pittsburg, Kansas, is one of those places where one would rather "go slow and see the town, then to go fast and see the jail," to quote a warning sign for Connecticut motorists. There are things to see in the town and the vicinity. It is the Kansas melting pot—literally and figuratively—in that it fuses humans and fuses metals. When Arthur Capper was governor he was given an international banquet here, There were forty speakers. Each spoke a few words of welcome in their native tongue. The intention was to show the cosmopolitan character of the district. It did.

Pittsburg, Kansas, is well named. Except for size and smoke it is like Pittsburg, Senior. The way an industrial operator could sink a shaft, dig out a car load of coal and deliver it to his customer all in a day's work, interested me. The zinc mining was new to me, added another touch of that world of work-a-day things I always seek.

I walked into the Pittsburg Manual Training Normal School a stranger. I walked out among friends. I had seen its advertisements in the Kansas Teacher which begins, "What is your objective? Is it efficiency and service, is it democracy and good citizenship, is it culture and character?" I know that the school answers the question in the affirmative. My reasons are three: President, faculty, methods.

Less than twenty years ago, R. S. Russ, the local superintendent of schools, and State Senator Porter conceived the idea of founding a state school that should train teachers in the 3 H's—Head, Heart, and Hands. (The manual training rah! rah! rah! of that period). As head of the school system, Russ had worked out a manual training system, and naturally he wanted "to tell the world." So the state legislature passed a bill authorizing the establishing of an institution for the training of teachers, which was to be known as the State Manual Training Normal School. For six years the student body was housed in a public school building. The 1907 legislature made an appropriation of $150,000 for the erection and equipment of the Administration Building. In January, 1909, the school was moved into a beautiful new edifice on the outskirts of the city. The legislature of 1911 made an appropriation of $50,000 for the erection of a building to be used for industrial and applied arts. Upon its completion the equipment from the old shops was installed, and $15,000 worth of new equipment added, with the result that by the middle of the year 1914 the school had most spacious and well-equipped shop buildings for carrying on the industrial and applied arts courses. The legislature of 1913 made an appropriation of $32,500 for the erection of a heating and power plant sufficient in size to admit of additional heating apparatus to meet the needs of the institution for many years.

On the 29th day of June, 1914, fire by lightning almost completely destroyed the Administration Building. So rapid was its spread that not even the class books of the forty-odd instructors were saved. Practically everything they had accumulated—equipment, books, working apparatus, etc.—which represented years of patient assembling on their part, went up in smoke. Altho the summer session was in full progress, with an attendance of approximately 1,200, not a single expression of discouragement was in evidence. Public buildings of the city of Pittsburg were opened and the summer school was continued to a successful close on schedule time. Governor Hodges, together with the Board of Administration, was summoned. With assurance and encouragement from these men, inside of twenty-four hours the citizens of Pittsburg held a mass meeting and selected a committee, and inside of thirty-six hours had pledged nearly $100,000 as a fund to be placed at the disposal of the Board of Administration for the reconstruction of the destroyed building. Work was immediately begun and prosecuted as rapidly as possible.

When the legislature of 1915 met, it unhesitatingly made an appropriation of $188,565.65 for the replacement of funds contributed by the citizens, and for the completion of the building and equipping it. Very properly it was named Russ Hall.

The legislature of 1917 made an appropriation of $200,000 to which the next legislature added $70,000 with which to erect a household economics and general science building with an auditorium annex, and named it in honor of Governor Carney.

Altho the physical development of the State Manual Training Normal School has been remarkable, it is by no means the most significant fact concerning the institution's history. From an enrollment of 50 at the opening of the school in 1903, the student body has increased annually until it reached a total enrollment for the year 1921-22 of 4,189. The enrollment for the summer session of 1922 was 2,760.

During the past year students from the following states attended the school: Kansas, Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachussetts, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. Of the 4,760 different students enrolled last year there were 61 who did graduate study. Its Alumni and former students are teaching in more than half the states of the Union. But the physical development and the increase in enrollment are not alone the significant things about the school. Its influence in the promotion of industrial and vocational education including industrial arts, home economics, and a more practical application of all the academic subjects has been far reaching.

I might tell about the 84 degrees conferred last year upon the four year students, the 248 life diplomas awarded to the two-year students, the 212 certificates for one year of work and approximately 600 other state certificates of various vocational destinations. I might write about the departmnts of household arts, music, commerce, rural education, arts and crafts, public speaking, playground directorships, and so on. I might give further figures of the 1921 legislature which appropriated $100,000 for a gymnasium building and $25,000 for a cafeteria building, to which amount the instituion itself added $10,000 for the building and $12,000 for equipment.

The legislature has recently made an appropriation of $120,000 for a hall for women. The gymnasium is nearly completed. It is 100 by 150 feet, modern and complete in every respect. The cafeteria building is one of the most unique and beautiful dining halls in the state of Kansas and has a seating capacity for 400. With the completion of the latter building the physical plant of the State Manual Training Normal Schrool will represent approximately $1,000,000.

And so I might go on with figures, facts, and facilities. But I am writing about a man of 3 B's—Brandenburg, Brains, Business. The business end is shown in his ability to get money from the legislature and in the growth of the school—1,416 students in 1913, when he came to the school, and 4,189 students in 1922. The brain end is his acceptance and full development of the policy of the founders of the institution—the education of the head, the heart, and the hand. The Brandenburg end is the stand he and his faculty have taken to practice as well as to preach that an educational institution exists for one purpose—that of serving society thru its particular channels of service.

It has never been President Brandenburg's policy to encourage, or even tolerate anything that would not conserve and promote democracy of relationships. The social atmosphere of the campus is such as to make the student of financial means and the student without financial means share in the same welcome. Students soon come to understand and to appreciate that personal merit and worth are the only passwords.

After all, it is the same old story. "An institution is the lengthened shadow of a man." I never knew it to fail. Tell me where (not what a man eats) and I'll tell you what he is. If he goes home for lunch at 12o'clock exactly and stays until 1 P. M. exactly he is a conservative. If he eats in the school cafeteria and waits on himself he is a liberal. If the students tip their hats to him on the campus, he is respectable. If they wave their hands, he is lovable. If teachers come up to him anytime and anywhere, he is companionable. If he merely posts notices for students and sends form letters to his faculty, he is smokescreenish. (This school was one of the few I ever visited where the bulletin boards were not covered with notices of "forbids" signed with the name of the head of the institution with several lines of titles underneath the signature).

Brandenburg began teaching in an Iowa log school-house. He "upgraded" himself until he became superintendent of schools in Oklahoma City. Pittsburg, Kansas, has been his terminal now for the past nine years. In personality he is dynamic. In ability "to get there" his I. Q. will be high if a system of measuring it is ever devised. In genuine democracy he is one hundred per cent, and this, thank Heaven, is a measurable factor.

He has a real grasp of the things which we lesser lights stand for He believes in productive work; i. e., in making productive the product of the shops and in making the products of the shop productive in the training of the mind. He has a direct way of saying things. Pedagese language is out of his field. He does not merely quote educational authority; he acts on it. He talks facts and not fancies. He supplied my sense of sight with tables, benches, chairs, dressers, renewed automobiles, garden and household arts products made in his school, and he left it to me to supply the 'isms and 'ologies on which rest the theory of his productive practice. He does not leave it to anyone in his school to supply the objectives. His mind is not of the pin-wheel type. Pin-wheel pedagogues are mighty tiresome fellows to visit.

His school has recently had the touch of a very prevalent national epidemic. It has been surveyed. Here I am tempted to quote from St. Luke, Chapter II, verse 46, changing only one word, "Woe unto you also, ye surveyors, for ye load men with burdens, grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers."

Some people think that the 3 B's of Pittsburg Normal are going too far. I do not know what these surveyors are going to say in their report. But after hearing some comments elsewher, I can well imagine: "You are a manual training normal school; stick to the label." "You are giving degrees;don't imitate the college." "You are giving courses in the elements of mining and engineering; tend to your knittink, which is manual training." You are growing too fast; be satisfied with little things." "You ar etraining people for playground directorships, community music leaders, and cafeteria managers; stick, my friend, to the 1907 ideas." "You are training young men to be printers, as well as teachers of auto work; don't do it. Remember that you are a normal school and there is a distinction between learning how to earn a living by working at a trade, and learning how to teach others how to earn a living at a trade."

President Brandenburg has an idea that his school existes to serve Kansas. It is a sort of obsession. If there is a demand for vocational training of music supervisors for a new type of musical appreciation and practice, then he thinks that it is his business to do it. If the school has a label over the door that does not fit the times, he would say, "Change the label and not try to change the times." If there is a real demand for a state school of secondary technology—a sort of Kansas Pratt Institute—then by all means let's have it. If there is no place in the state for a boy to go and learn auto mechanics, plumbing, pattern making, printing, etc., because he lives in some small place which has no public vocational training in those lines, then it is the business of the K. S. M. T. N. S. to give this training." Why quibble over words and labels! Remember the 3 B's are at work. And I agree with the busy B's.

President Brandenburg has another idea. It is that there is not a whole lot of difference between learning how to do a good job in the shop under capable instruction and learning how to teach others to do a good job. Both cases involve doing a good piece of productive work. He has no use for models as such. The best cabinet maker is he who can make a good cabinet. The best teacher of cabinet making is one who can make a good cabinet and teach others to make good cabinets. The first projects his head into his hands. The second projects his head into the boy's head. Both get cabinets. Both use their heads.

From what I could learn, the surveyors would have been better satisfied if they have seen models strung up on hooks and eyes along the walls instead of rows of finished desks, drawing tables, and stools; Christmas cards instead of the Manualite and school reports; nice clean gas engines set upon standards instead of dirty greasy automobiles on a garage floor; pretty drawings of shades and shadows instead of full-sized pencil drawings of lay outs.

If I were in his place I'd stand up for my "Service to Kansas" idea. I would continue my useful products method. I would train teachers of practical arts for the junior high schools. I would train teachers for the general shop idea. I would train teachers for trade schools. I would train in short, non-degree taking courses any young men and women for vocational service in lines outside of teaching which were not "pure" agricultural or "pure" engineering or "pure" mining courses of university rank. There is a great field of technology of a grade lower than the university work. I would make the K. S. M. T. N. S. in so far as the vocational field is concerned, a first class State Polytechnic Institute. If the present name did not fit my ideal I'd eithr forget the present name or change it. I would not change the times nor forgt them. They are different from what they were twenty years ago.

The school prints a paper called The Vocate—a good name. It is the mouthpiece of the Veterans' Bureau group of trainees. I rather guess that Brandenburg and his faculty will continue to vocate and not to vacate their ideas.

A FEW STATEMENTS BY DR. A. E. WINSHIP, EDITOR OF THE JOURNAL OF EDUCATION, REGARDING S. M. T. N.

"It is the only fullfleged industrial institution that is focused on teaching."

"The school has an educational atmosphere rather than scholastic."

"It pays a premium on what might be called Industrial Scholarship, knowing the science in industry as well as the achievement in industry."

"There might well be put over the entrance to the Normal grounds a motto which is found over the door to one of the college buildings at Oxford. 'He who reads and reads and does not what he knows, is he who plows and plows and never sows."

"These students have the seedtime and the harvest with the thought ever in mind of passing on their ability to other generations."

"It is already one of the largest teachers' colleges in the country."

"I've been here since the second year the institution was establised. The growth of the educational plant, the beatuy of the campus and the attractiveness of this end of the city are evidence of the progress of this school. The initiation is as interesting as any of its age in the country. It has the spirit of youth with the promise of vast development."
